On its own terms it is a good read and brings knowledge of very interesting details to the subject. Sandra Rivett's murder was not, however, a 'different class of murder'. Death is the great leveller and violent death is just that whatever the class of the perpetrator and the victim. Murderers are murderers whatever their background.

Every class or level has a set punishment or a range; and every statute that defines a crime specifies the class or level that the crime belongs in. For example, one state may specify that class A felonies are punished by up to 20 years in jail (plus a fine of up to $40,000); and the forgery statute may state that forgery of a certain type is a class A crime.
