With large numbers of indoor and outdoor staff, country houses were important as places of employment for many rural communities. In turn, until the agricultural depressions of the 1870s, the estates, of which country houses were the hub, provided their owners with incomes. However, the late 19th and early 20th centuries were the swansong of the traditional English country house lifestyle.

Photos of the different types of houses. Census 2001: Housing. The most popular type of home in England is semi-detached (more than 27% of all homes), closely followed by detached then terraced.. Almost half of London's households are flats, maisonettes or apartments. Information taken from Census 2001
